MISLEADING REPORT DENIED.

My attention has been called to rumors that have been circulated about the town recently to the effect that I have made statements that the Tonopah Extension Mining company claims an apex in its ground to the new vein recently opened up by the Cash Boy Mining company. I wish to say that this report is absolutely without foundation and that neither I nor any one connected with the management of the Tonopah Extension Mining company has ever made such a claim. Such reports hurt the legitimate development of this camp, for which we are all striving. The success of the Cash Boy Mining company means a great deal for the town of Tonopah, as well as for all the properties in the western part of the Tonopah camp, and I wish them every success.

GOOD FORTUNE COMES IN HIS OLD AGE

Fortune has come in plentiful measure to J. J. Hill, who has been a resident of Tonopah at intervals since 1904. He purchased stock in the Eagle River Tunnel Mining company at Redcliffe, Colo., on Battle Mountain, about twenty-two years ago. The estate consisted of twenty-two patented claims, carrying zinc and lead, with a small percentage of gold and silver. He supposed that this property was worthless. At the time that Mr. Hill left Redcliffe he was a wealthy man. His fortune dwindled away from him and he went to work for wages as a millwright, hoping to recover his lost fortune, and remained in obscurity.

Four months ago James Law, a timberman in the Belmont mine, who formerly resided at Redcliffe, met Mr. Hill and returned to Denver. He gave this information to Denver people that he had seen Hill in Tonopah. In the last year this mining property had changed hands and additional ground had been acquired. The property was developed on a large scale and dividends to the amount of 48 cents per share have been paid to the original holders of the mother company. Mr. Hill's portion, which has been deposited in a Denver bank, is estimated, will net him near the hundred thousand dollar mark, to say nothing of the value of the interest he retains. The quotations on the stock are now $115 bid. A large smelter concern is seeking to take over the property.

Mr. Hill was apprised of his good fortune a short time ago and expects to learn within the next week the amount of shares in his name, which he has in a safety box in Oakland. Mr. Hill, who is a millwright, erected, in the early days of Southern Nevada, mills at a number of points in this region. Among these were the Standard at Beatty, a Niscon mill in Death valley, and a Wisconsin mill at Beatty. He erected the courthouse in Tonopah and was superintendent of the Continental Construction company in the early days. Other structures he put up were the Kendall block and the public library.

Mr. Hill's family, who reside here, consists of his wife, a daughter, Miss Laurel Hill, who was a graduate of the Tonopah normal school in 1917, also a daughter, Miss Constant Hill, who is attending the public schools. Mr. Hill and his wife take their good fortune as philosophically as he did his financial reverses in the early days. During the past few years Hill has invented a jig concentrator that will undoubtedly bring him another fortune in his old age.

WOMEN WORK FOR BOYS IN TRENCHES

The workers at the Tonopah National Surgical Dressings work room are making drains this week. This organization is a national auxiliary to the Red Cross. Any day you go by you may see the white uniformed women busy folding these little thin strips of gauze that are going to mean life to many a wounded man in the hospitals of France. With quick, watchful eyes they look for the tiny dangerous loose threads that, working off into an open wound, might cause terrible agony or even death to the man they work to serve. With deft fingers they fold and refold the gauze and tie the finished articles in bundles of ten. And then with great care they check and count to be sure that the bundles do not contain one over or under the required number. The surgeons at the front cannot take time to count them; they take for granted the work is accurate. If there is one too many in a bundle, eleven drains might be packed in a wound, and next day the surgeon on his rounds would take out ten, thinking ing he had them all. A few days later the tortured body of that wounded man would be laid in a shallow grave, so the workers are very careful and there is no chance that a miscounted package of drains will ever leave the Tonopah work room, because the system of checking is too elaborate.

This organization wants more workers and more members. The dues are only 50 cents a month. Word comes from headquarters to increase the output, as more and more surgical dressings are needed at the front if our men are to have a fair chance for life after being wounded in our defense. Can you afford not to help to the limit of your ability? Fifty cents will buy 150 drains, or thirty compresses, or three flannel binders, or ten Carrel cushions. Think how many men that will help every month! Don't wait for someone to ask you, but call up the N. S. D. committee headquarters now, while you are thinking about it, and tell them you want your name on their roll of honor.

TRAINING CAMPS IN EXCELLENT CONDITION

(By Associated Press.) OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 5.—Will M. Maupin, special representative of Governor Neville of Nebraska to investigate conditions of the army camp at Camp Cody, Deming, N. M., yesterday made an exhaustive report to the governor, in which he praised everything in connection with the camp except its location. In recapitulation, Mr. Maupin's report says:

"To recapitulate: I found the men to be well fed, well clothed and comfortably housed in tents; the hospital equipment is fairly good and the management thereof excellent.

"The general health is good, but doubtless would be better were it not for the sand and sandstorms. The soldiers at Camp Cody are 'rearin' to go,' and a mighty fine lot of men they are. But whoever is responsible for locating an army camp on such a God-forsaken sand-plagued, windswept desert is also responsible for a lot of overtime work on the part of the recording angel."

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE BUTLER.

If you miss the George Walsh picture at the Butler tonight you will miss one of the best pictures that have ever been put forth on the screen. "The Pride of New York" is of special interest at this time because it begins with the craft and ends in the trenches. In between are shown a long line of incidents touching on our preparation for war and including the various "bits" men and women are doing outside the ranks to aid in bringing about a victorious result for the Stars and Stripes. Through it all there is a love interest that is gripping and touches the parents and sisters and sweethearts. The rapid fire work of George Walsh during the entire picture causes every foot of film to hold tightly the attention of the viewer. And humorous touches crop up continually. The story opens with George the son of a building contractor and at work on a 20-story structure. To show that he is industrious, he climbs from the street to the twentieth story of a new building. At the given signal George in his "working" clothes fastened his foot in the hook that usually is fastened to the chains around iron beams, took a good grip on the steel rope, waved his hand to the crowd, and began to go up, and let loose his famous smile. As he began to grow small the crowd watching held its breath. It might be all right for a regular iron worker, but for a motion picture actor, my, what a chance! As George disappeared the crowd breathed easier and then cheered. You will see many more hair-raising stunts like this when you see "The Pride of New York" today. "The Pride of New York" is not only entertaining and amusing, but carries a strong lesson for all. Come early. Also a Bray cartoon, and it is a good one.

Tomorrow, Mme. Petrova, Thursday, Marguerite Clark, in "The Amazons." Tell the children about the special matinee Saturday. Admission for children, 11 cents; evening, children 15 cents.
